Rabbi Sidlofsky's Reflections

From Parting Seas to Building Bridges

There is a story in the Jewish tradition that tells of the Israelites' reaction when leaving Egypt. Upon crossing the Sea of Reeds (Red Sea) to freedom, and seeing Pharaoh's soldiers and horses drowning, the Israelites broke out in joyful songs of praise to God.

In a sense, such a reaction is understandable. After all, we read in the book of Exodus that the Israelites had been subjected to forced labor by the Egyptians for four hundred and thirty years. Their lives had been made miserable by their taskmasters, and little hope remained for their redemption. So of course they would be ecstatic with this sudden turn of events. Who could blame them? The parable could have ended there, but it doesn't. We read further that while the Israelites were celebrating, God chastised them, saying, "My children are drowning, and you sing praises?!" Could such a message be any stronger or more meaningful? Could it contain a better reminder for us over three thousand years later, at this holy day season for so many, and a time of rebirth and renewal?

We are not so different from our ancestors millennia ago. We, too, rejoice in our achievements and successes, often disregarding their consequences and affect on others. We often delight — perhaps openly, perhaps secretly — in the failure of our "enemies", choosing to separate ourselves from them, rather than to build bridges of understanding and tolerance. Or, at least, we do not show any signs of support. We seem to forget that these people are God's children. We may forget that we are as well.

Passover, for Jews, is a time of great rejoicing; a time to celebrate freedom and rebirth. Yet it is also a time for remembrance of the cost of such freedom for all involved; a reminder of the growth we have experienced. At our seders the story of the Exodus from Egypt is told with great ceremony and joy. And yet, we also reflect. Salt water is used to remember the tears of the Israelites during their bondage. Bitter herbs represent the physical and emotional pain experienced. And cups of wine, symbols of sweetness and joy, have ten drops removed before drinking, to lessen our joy when recalling the plagues upon Egypt. In modern times, drops are also removed for other "plagues", such as war, disease, and prejudice.

If we are truly to understand the message of this festival, we must broaden our perspective to look not only at our good fortune, but also at the fortunes of others to whom we have a responsibility as human beings. We must reflect on our history — where we've come from — in order truly to appreciate where we are now. At the seder each year, Jews are reminded that in every generation, each person should look at oneself as if he or she personally had come out of Egypt. We are to see ourselves as experiencing the miracle of redemption; of safely crossing the sea to dry land.

Now it is time to go further. Rather than relying on God's miracles, let us create our own miracle, building bridges to cross the seas of mistrust and prejudice that divide us. Many of God's children are still drowning, overwhelmed by the waters that engulf their lives. Only by working together can we save them. And only then will we have fully experienced redemption.

A Message From Our President

HOWARD KANOWITZ

It is with great pleasure and with so much pride that I write this article for our Temple Times.

Temple Isaiah has blossomed right along with Passover and this beautiful spring season. We have been rejuvenated by all the wonderful happenings at our Temple! Our second night of Passover seder was conducted by Student Cantor Kalix Jacobson, who will be ordained as a Cantor on May 7th. (Mazel tov, Kalix) We thank Kalix for inspiring us with such a beautiful voice. The Seder was perfection, and the 50 people who attended expressed wishes for this to be an annual Temple tradition. We will make that happen.

The Rabbi Search Committee has brought us Rabbi Joshua Gray, an extraordinary spiritual leader, who along with his wife, Meghan, and son, Cameron (8) and daughter, Lena (3) will join our Temple family on July 1st. Rabbi Josh will inspire us at services while also serving as Cantor with his beautiful, classically trained voice. Stay tuned for Meet and Greet gatherings because Rabbi Josh and Meghan are ready and eager to get to know us and to be a part of our lives. We thank the Rabbi Search Committee under the leadership of Donna Newman and Marge Weiser for its many, many hours of hard work.

We are proud to welcome the Nanume Korean Church as our Sunday afternoon tenant. Temple Isaiah values our relationships with all faith communities and we are happy to give people of faith a place to gather and hold services. I had the pleasure of attending their first service in our social hall and was enriched by the experience. Our social hall was filled with love, companionship and joy.

I am also proud to report that we are continuing our relationship with FREE and have signed a lease that will extend to 2025. We are so fortunate to have this organization and its people, who perform such good work renting a building on our property.

I would be remiss if I didn't thank all the congregants who make Temple Isaiah such a special and wonderful place. Sisterhood and Brotherhood and all our standing committees bring us together by sponsoring social activities and participating in acts of Tikkun Olam. And the funds they raise help keep our Temple solvent. We hope that more of our congregants will want to experience the satisfaction of lending their talent and energy to the good work being done here. You will be greeted warmly by all.

Very importantly, we should all recognize that Penny is a committee of one and does the work of many. She will be the guide at Rabbi Josh's side, and I know you'll all join me in saying a sincere, "Thank you, Penny, for all you do and all you are!"

SIMCHAS & TZURES

Whether you have happy news (simchas) or sad news (tzures), we hope you will share it with us. Please let us know about births, engagements, weddings, and other happy occasions, as well as hospitalizations, sicknesses, or deaths. If you would like one of our rabbis to officiate at a funeral, please speak to Rabbi Sidlofsky before scheduling. Our sanctuary is available for funeral or memorial services.

EXCITING NEWS FROM THE RABBI SEARCH COMMITTEE!

If you were unable to attend the Special Congregational Meeting on April 20th, you missed one of the BEST moments in Temple Isaiah's history. By a unanimous vote, congregants approved a three year contract for our incoming spiritual leader. Rabbi Joshua Gray will officially begin his role on July 1, 2023, but he is already a beloved member of the Temple Isaiah family, as is his wife, Meghan, and their two children: Cameron and Lena.

Rabbi Josh (as he likes to be called) will serve as both our Rabbi and our Cantor. His classically trained voice is perfectly suited for a cantorial soloist. He has led services in both roles for Shabbat services at Temple Beth El in Glens Falls, NY, and for the High Holy Days last year at Temple Beth Shalom in Monticello, NY, where they immediately signed him for a repeat engagement in 2023. (We know they will be sad to hear that he will be at Temple Isaiah for the High Holy Days this year but, at the same time, they will be happy that he found a welcoming new home.)

Rabbi Josh prepared for the rabbinate while working as a mental health professional. As Director of Support Services at the Warren-Washington Association for Mental Health in Hudson Falls, NY, he was responsible for overseeing a staff of more than twenty employees. He received his training from the Rabbinical Seminary International in New York City, earning semicha in June, 2021 (a diploma awarded by seminaries upon successful completion of program). Rabbi Josh has since been honing his skills as an independent rabbi.

After he read the Temple Isaiah opening posted online, he was one of the first applicants to respond. He was the first candidate interviewed by the search committee. And after a one-hour Zoom session, every member of the committee had formed the same impression. This young man embodied every single thing we were looking for; our conversation was so comfortable we felt an instant rapport. In the email messages that ensued, he wrote he was happy the connection he felt had been reciprocated. We started using the Yiddish word bashert (meant to be or predestined by God) for it truly felt like "divine intervention."

Rabbi Josh looks forward to meeting our Temple Isaiah congregants and getting to know each one of us. Watch for information in the weekly e-blasts to announce when he will next be in town.

L'Shalom,
Donna Newman and Marge Weiser

of Stony Brook, New York

Temple Isaiah is Delighted to Welcome RABBI JOSHUA AND MEGHAN GRAY

The Board of Trustees of Temple Isaiah is pleased to welcome our new spiritual leader, Rabbi Joshua Gray, along with his wife Meghan and their two children, Cameron and Lena. Rabbi Josh will be joining our Temple Isaiah family on July 1, 2023, and will serve as both our rabbi and cantor.

Rabbi Josh is a warm, insightful, compassionate, and enthusiastic leader, who is committed to the preservation and well-being of the Jewish people. It will be his task to lead our congregation into a bright future, engaging our youth and growing our membership.

Rabbi Josh earned a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology from Penn State University, while graduating summa cum laude. He earned Semicha (Ordination) through the Rabbinical Seminary International, and is a member of the Rabbinical Fellowship of America.

Rabbi Josh also comes with an extensive background in mental health and counseling. He believes that our spiritual well-being is directly related to our emotional and physical health, and that we must nurture the nefesh (soul) to maintain or find our way back to wellness.

With a background as a professional performer, Rabbi Josh brings a highly creative approach to his rabbinate. "When I sing the Jewish liturgy, I feel as if I am using my creative gifts in the most meaningful way possible. When reading the siddur, my creative background helps me to see and interpret the text in myriad ways that keep the words fresh, vibrant, and profound."

But Rabbi Josh isn't necessarily the most talented member of the family. His wife Meghan is a classically trained vocalist who often sings harmony with her husband.

Welcome to our TI family! Introducing Rabbi Joshua Gray, Meghan, Cameron, and Lena!

SOCIAL ACTION ACTIONS

It has been my honor to represent Temple Isaiah at Abraham's Table this past year, and to work with Jews, Christians and Muslims to plan events and to discuss ideas to "create a spirit of common heritage, peace and cooperation" on Long Island.

Many of the ideas for our inter-faith services, including our Shabbat service honoring Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., came from ZOOM discussions, shared articles, flyers, and events held by those at "The Table." Working in solidarity with the shared goals of bringing about constructive change and respecting the dignity of people of every religion gives me hope for our diverse Long Island. Our dialogue is honest and sometimes solemn, but we also respect and feel the joy of each other's holiday celebrations. In the future I hope to bring more ideas from Abraham's Table to Temple Isaiah.

Perhaps you received a Mishloach Manot gift for Purim. Approximately a dozen congregants received the surprise gift delivered by Social Action committee members. We want people to know that even if they are not able to make it to Temple, or simply if they need some cheer, they are in our thoughts. The phone calls and notes of appreciation encourage us to surprise a few more people on Rosh Hashanah and Passover as well. If you know of someone who could use a treat such as this, please let us know.

We will have a special PRIDE SHABBAT service on June 9th. It's a 7:30 PM service, so we encourage families to attend.

Don't plan your fall getaway the weekend of November 5th, when we will be celebrating our first Mitzvah Day with Rabbi Joshua Gray, his wife Meghan, and their children Cameron and Lena.

Our Sisterhood-led Shabbat Service was held Friday, March 24th. We would like to thank all of our Sisterhood participants, Rabbi Paul, and Kalix for helping create a beautiful service. We especially thank Brotherhood for sponsoring the lovely Oneg, complete with setup and cleanup for this occasion, allowing us to concentrate on the service. We look forward to reciprocating for the Brotherhood led service April 28th.

We will be having our Spring yard sale this year beginning with setup and pizza on Saturday, April 29th at 7PM. Our sale will begin on April 30th at 1PM and end on Monday,
